Trade in the East-The Clearing House-No. Favorable Change in the Metals-News From the Mines.

At a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday, a resolu-tion was passed to the effect that the intermeros commission be wired to postpone the proposed investigation for sixty days. "This," said Secretary Sears in explanation, "was done in order that the railways might have a chance to make good their promises that rates would be arranged satisfactorily to our merchants, providing they were given a reasonable way people, it is now assured, will soon meet with the committee, when the work will be commenced and actively prosecuted to a Duisb."

The American National.

The American National bank has increased its surplus from $40,000 to $45,000. Trade in the East.

Later advices promise rather better crops of wheat and corn, and cotton prospects are a little better, though neither yield will approach that of last year. With abundant supplies brought over, the outlook is so the prespect for fell trade is everywhere considered bright. More gold has gone ond, but money is abundant and easy, and collections in almost all quarters are more satisfactory than usual.

Trade is quiet at Boston and in retail lines moderate, with atoess well cleaned up. Orders for dress goods from the west are large, and cotton jobbers have no difficulty in selling the whole production, higher prices for bleached goods being expected. Boot and shoe shops are pressed by jobbers and the trade is healthy, though

Gowns have a tendency to double themselves over the shoulders. Dame Fashion, romembering that her devotees have been baring neck and shoulders for her eake all those summer evenings, seeks before the winter shall have fairly set in to clothe them well with double garments that shall atone for any lack in the past. Russian eleeves and hanging lace bibs were the first indications of this tendency, and now a dress fresh from Paris has a funny loss our or any lack in the past. A pelerine with full yoke on a standing collar so very high that it turns over alightly has the garment proper fastened on the yoke. But first the pelerine turns over in wide revers cut up sailor fashion, with an anchor embroidered at each corner. At the back the revers go down into a deep point, and under the cape hangs full and plain; but at the front the cloth is caught up full, and is fastened at the side under the revers. A heavy cord binds it, and the same hangs in a long knot at the side.

A new jacket also has a quaint cut. Its fronts turn far back at the neck in wide revers, which slant marrower and narrower till they meet below the waist. Here a strap runs arross confined with a handsome buckle, and underneath the coat is cut entirely away in front, leaving a large empty square, and the sides and back hanging down long.

A pretty summer afternoon dress that is creating quite a furor just at present is of celestial blue surah trimmed with a deep flounce of cream tuile. From under the tuile peeps a narrow band of richest brown velvet, and at the top of the ruffle is a pretty, funciful heading of this same velvet. The bodice is all of tuile, and around each armhole are laid two narrow realings of the velvet, and Irom under cach arm
